COVER GIRL - Miss Wareham, Kathy Schaaf of North Street, Mattapoisett packs for her trip to the Miss Massachusetts contest in Attleboro to be held this week.

MISS MASSACHUSETTS TO BE CROWNED SAT.

On July 20, 21, 22 at Attleboro High School the new Miss Massachusetts will be selected and crowned. This will be the next step to the Miss America crown which takes place each September in Atlantic City. Our own Miss Wareham, Kathy Schaaf will be competing all this week for that future opportunity.

What happens when a pretty 18-year old miss captures a crown--after the initial thrills settle down the true work of a queen becomes all important. The most important step and probably the hardest is the self-analysis or how do you really improve yourself?

Amid official appearances for the town of Wareham and the Wareham Chamber of Commerce, the sponsoring organization, studies and a full time job, Kathy has taken this into her stride. She has spent interesting hours with Elaine Pearsons (her predecessor) for the professional look and proper make-up. Miss Pearsons is a professional model who also was Miss Congeniality in the Miss Massachusetts Pageant of 1966.

Then came the long hours of learning how to walk like a queen. This is no easy task for a young lady who must walk like floating on a cloud, always smile and still be relaxed so the judges will think you've been walking like

Of course, while a queen must always look her very best, her hair is very important, since the sparkling Miss Wareham crown is worn often and naturally admired by all those who see our Kathy. We made many visits to our favorite hair-stylist, Anthony's of South Dartmouth. Tony Arruda, as he is known to his friends, knew the many problems Kathy would be faced with as the week progresses in Attleboro.

Therefore, with patience and his popular talents, Mr. Anthony has given Kathy all the latest hair-styles and suggestions to combat weather, fatigue, and the hot lights of the television cameras.

In between these hours of preparation, Kathy has been selecting her new wardrobe. Like any girl she is thrilled with this "new look". Her competition gown of turquoise chiffon will only enhance this blonde beauty. Of course, several gowns and cocktail dresses will be traveling to Attleboro with her, since our representatives will be attending a banquet in their honor each night. Her swim suit, interview suit and afternoon dresses have all been selected with the utmost care.

On Tuesday morning Kathy said her good-byes to her family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schaaf of 19 North Street, Mattapoisett, and traveled with her chaperone, Mrs. Rita L. Blair, to her next "new home" for the week - Wheaton College.

Without a doubt this will be a week to remember, but Kathy has already learned many new and interesting things. You can be assured that Miss Wareham, Kathy Schaaf, has truly prepared herself for this next competition.

The very talented miss from Mattapoisett wil present the title song from the "Sound of Music" dressed in a nun's novice habit which she de-

Ambassador to Japan. Greetings from the Japanese people will be brought by Consul-General Nara of New York.

At the time of the disaster, the fast and able clipper was enroute from Hong Kong to San Francisco. No cargo was aboard, but she carried 460 Chinese laborers headed for work in the California mines.

With the help of the islanders, the Viking's crew and passengers all reached shore safely. Eventually, the U. S. S. Wyoming arrived to retrieve the castaways, but throughout their stay on Mikura they were well cared for.

The hospitality of the Mikura villagers marked one of the first departures from Japan's long-standing policy of hostility to foreigners.

News of the Viking's loss passed almost unnoticed in the clamor of the then-raging American Civil War. For 100 years, the story of the islanders' kindness to those aboard the stricken vessel remained unknown to the outside world.

On Mikura itself, the wreck of the long black ship had become a legend, passed down from generation to generation.

In 1964, a Japanese botanist, Dr. Motoo Takahashi visited the remote island in search of plant specimens. He found instead in a Shinto shrine an old ship's capstan serving as the base for a tall bronze lantern.

Curious, Dr. Takahashi probed the puzzle of the capstan's origins. With the help of the American Embassy in Tokyo, he finally brought to light the details of the Viking's last voyage.

Two identical plaques, inscribed in Japanese and English, were then provided by the Old Dartmouth Historical Society to memorialize the rescue. One was unveiled in a May 18 ceremony on faraway Mikura; the second will be dedicated July 23 in New Bedford.

At the ceremony at the Whaling Museum, the plaque will be unveiled by a great-great-grandchild of George Hussey, the prominent New Bedford merchant who owned the Viking.

Together, the two plaques call to mind a long-forgotten incident and, in doing so, seek to strengthen the ties of friendship between the peoples of Japan and the United States.

Marion Art Center

ART CENTER'S ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Marion Art Center was held last Wednesday, July 12, 1967. The purpose of this gathering was to hear reports from various officers concerning the activities and accomplishments which have taken place at the Center during the past year. Plans for the future were also revealed. The highlight of the treasurer's report was the reduction of the mortgage by almost one-third. Retiring president, Vi Eaton spoke of her "most exciting three years" in this executive capacity. Perhaps her major accomplishment is the firm establishment of the Cecil Clark Davis Gallery. Over 2400 people visited the little gallery this year to enjoy shows from New York, Boston, and all over this area. The art center has flourished under the guidance of Mrs. Eaton, and very few realize the hours and hours it takes to run the many-faceted Marion Art Center. Insurance policies, exploding furnaces, and dealings with the New York Theater Company are not unusual experiences.

To carry on in this exciting job, the Board of Directors has elected Mrs. Graham Campbell. Mrs. Campbell has devoted her time and energy to numerous theater productions and has been a dedicated worker ever since she has lived here. Congratulations to the new president! Other officers include: Mrs. Law-

Marion Art Center is pleased to serve the community by providing an art gallery, art lending service, painting classes for adults and children, plays (last year "In White America", "Gigi" and "The Fantasticks"), lectures and films. Next fall a theater work shop is scheduled, along with other special events. Your support, encouragement and suggestions are always welcome.

AUCTION TO BE HELD IN MARION

The scene of the annual auction held in conjunction with the Marion Congregational Church' summer fair is being shifted this year from the Congregational Chapel to Bardens Boat Yard on the town landing, where seats for all and ample parking space is assured.

Last year lack of space at the Chapel made it impossible for all to get in to the popular event, so Auction chairmen, Theodore W. Lacey and Merrill Worthen sought out a more spacious hall. William Coulson graciously offered the use of his building and several hundred chairs are being installed for the occasion.

Professional Auctioneer Richard Bourne, who has served in past years again will be conducting the big sale, which will include, as always, a great variety of articles and tremendous bargains. A committee has been canvassing the area for weeks collecting donated items.

The auction will be held at 7:30 Wednesday night, July 26th.

A showing of the paintings of Sarah Brown of Water Street, Mattapoisett is now in progress at the Long Gallery at Mattapoisett Inn.

The paintings are of both oil and water color. Many are seascapes which appeal strongly to local people. The artist is a colorist with a nice easy style, particularly evident in the water colors.

Sarah, Mrs. Robert Brown, received her AB degree at DePauw University and furthered her study of painting under Henri Goetz of Fountainbleu, France.

HIGHWAY USER PAID $135 IN TAXES IN 1966

The average Massachusetts highway user paid more than $135 in state and federal road taxes during fiscal 1966, according to John F. Battles, executive director of the Massachusetts Petroleum Council.

Battles said state taxes levied on 2.2 million motor vehicles in Massachusetts accounted for $148,000,000 while federal levies accounted for $136,000,000-------a total of $284,000,000 in highway taxes. The Commonwealth's highway user revenues are collected primarily from state taxes on gasoline, motor vehicle registrations and license fees, he added.

The excise tax on motor vehicles is collected by the cities and towns and is not earmarked for highway purposes, Battles noted, and therefore is not included in the highway user tax totals.

The Commonwealth's 6 1/2 cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline accounted for $111,000,000 of the state's highway user receipts, Battles said.

Federal highway user taxes, Battles continued, are levied on gasoline, automobiles, tires, tubes, tread rubber and lubricating oil. The federal tax on gasoline is four cents a gallon and yields $66,000,000. This brings the total state and federal gasoline tax in Massachusetts to 10 1/2 cents a gallon, yielding $176,000,000 a year in gasoline taxes, Battles said.

"State and federal gasoline taxes now cost Massachusetts motorists $322 a minute, $464,000 a day and more than $14,000,000 a month," Battles declared. "During the 38 years that

MATT. GIRL STUDYING IN EUROPE

Karen St. Germaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert St. Germaine, Jr., of 16 LeBaron Way, Mattapoisett, left two weeks ago from New York to spend the summer studying in France and Italy. Karen has been a student at New Bedford High School, but will enter Old Rochester Regional High School as a senior this fall.

YWCA

Mrs. Dorothy Drinkwater, newly elected president of the YWCA, met with chairmen of committees recently, and set up a schedule of committee meetings for the year. Mrs. Drinkwater reminded everyone that as chairman of a committee they had assumed great responsibilities, and that the YWCA functions largely on the work of committee members.

The Public Relations Committee is pleased to announce a new program idea for clubs, "Know Your YWCA". This is a 20-30 minute illustrated program with colored slides, showing activities and classes offered at the YWCA for girls and women, as well as those which include boys and men. This program is planned to better acquaint women in the community with the YWCA and what it has to offer the people of greater New Bedford in many areas of learning and recreation. The committee will be pleased to arrange for two of its members to present an informal program, without charge, to any organization. Projector and screen will be provided. Inquiries will be welcome at the YWCA, 999-6201. Further information and plans for a program date can be arranged.

Members are urged to check their membership, as voting privileges depend on an up-to-date card. A summer newsletter will be mailed soon.
